

JOHN F. SACKETT
COLONEL, U.S. ARMY

Colonel John F. Sackett, Adjutant General Corps, United States Army, was born in Santa Rosa, California. In 1976 he enlisted in the Air Force at the age of 22 and was later commissioned through ROTC at the University of California, Davis in June 1979.

Colonel Sackett is assigned to the U.S. Army Physical Disabilities Agency, Human Resources Command in Alexandria, Virginia. He serves as the Chief of the Combat-Related Special Compensation (CRSC) and Traumatic Serviceman's Group Life Insurance (TSGLI) Divisions.

Colonel Sackett has served both on active and reserve duty assignments. Active duty assignments include, Family Programs Officer for 250,000 Soldiers in the Reserves and Guard, Emergency Operations Center for Homeland Defense with the Global War on Terror, and G1 Mobilization Chief, First U.S. Army, mobilizing Reservists for Operations' Iraqi Freedom and Enduring Freedom. His reserve duty assignments include works in Personnel, Logistics, and commanding a Heavy Weapons Company, including other reserve assignments with Headquarters, First US Army located in Georgia, and the 91st Division located in California.

Colonel Sackett is a graduate of California State University Chico with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Pre-Law Political Science and a Master's of Science in Computer Information Systems. His military education includes numerous career development schools to include the Army's Command and General Staff College.

He is currently stationed and living in Alexandria, Virginia. He and his wife Patricia have their permanent residence in Fayetteville, Georgia.